G. Wright, J. G. Packard and W. F. Noble. The articles of the Tina H. Gold Mining company were amended, increasing the capital stock to $1,000,000. RECLAMATION OF LIZZIE OWENS—The trial of Lizzie Owens, the Apache girl charged with the theft of a gold ring and other articles from Mrs. E. M. Dewey, by whom she had been employed, took place before Justice Burnett yesterday morning. The girl admitted the theft, but after the manner of her trial she declined to give any information about the location of the property. The object of the arrest of the girl was not so much her punishment as her reclamation. She was therefore not sentenced to the county jail but was condemned to hard labor in the laundry of the Indian school for sixty days. It is believed that at the end of that time she will have learned that it is wrong to steal.

ANOTHER DETOURED TOURIST—Among the belated travelers returning to Phoenix Thursday morning via the Southern Pacific was Chas. R. Sterling, brother-in-law of Dr. P. V. Woodward. Mr. Sterling left about three months ago for St. Louis and other points in the east, spending most of his time visiting a sister in Hutchinson, Kansas. Like a good many others he was flooded down en route home coming to a standstill at a little one horse town, Naravissa, in New Mexico. It was finally decided to turn back to Herrington, Kas., and there strike the road south to Fort Worth, and from this point west to El Paso. While in Texas a little time was spent visiting the cotton plantations and incidentally killing a few rattlesnakes. There were several rather hair-raising incidents along the way, the train being in two wrecks, happily, though, no one being seriously injured. Two bridges went down just after the train had passed. Mr. Sterling congratulates himself however, on having a good long ride for his money and reaching home in safety.

CAVE CREEK PROSPECTS—W. G. Gates is in the city from Cram Mountain for the purpose of getting new camp supplies, seeing the circus, finding out the latest planks in the democratic platform, reviewing his political catechism and attending to private business matters generally. Mr. Gates says he thinks the long sleep of the Cave Creek Mining district is now about over, that there is to be an awakening there this winter that will startle the world, or this part of it at least. He says it is his opinion that the owners of the Cram Mountain property, of which he is in charge, intend at an early day to resume active work. He understands that there is to be active development at once, begun on the property recently sold by S. A. Mills. There is also a report that the owners of the Phoenix mine are to begin another developing campaign this winter and it is authoritatively stated that F. E. Withey of the Grand Traverse & Arizona company will in a short time resume his operations. A good force of men was employed on the Grand Traverse properties all last winter, work being stopped last spring by reason of the need of machinery. There were more could be economically accomplished. Altogether Mr. Gates thinks the prospects for mining activity in the Cave Creek section are better than ever before and that the hills will soon be full of horny handed miners.

NORTH SIDE CANALS

Hearing of a Suit to Deprive Them of Their Franchises.

The quo warranto cases brought against the Maricopa, Grand and Salt River Valley canal companies came up in district court yesterday on demurrer. They occupied the greater part of the day and late in the afternoon were submitted. The suits were brought in the name of the district attorney, but the attorneys are Thomas Armstrong, Jr., and E. W. Lewis, attorneys for the plaintiffs in the suits lately brought by water users under the same canal companies, asking among other things for a receiver, the severance of relations between each of the defendant companies and any other company.

In the cases heard yesterday it is asked that the franchisees of the companies be revoked for various reasons. It is alleged that the companies are appropriators of water in various amounts and intended to serve certain areas of land; that in many respects the defendant companies have gone beyond the limitation of the powers conferred by their franchises; that they have become associated with a foreign corporation known as the Arizona Water company, incorporated under the laws of the state of Maine; that a part of the water appropriated by each of the defendant canals and which was sufficient only for the land originally intended to be served, has been diverted to lands under other canals by an arrangement by the Arizona Water company; that the stockholders of the latter company have become stockholders in each of the defendant companies and are employing their power against the best interests of the owners of the lands entitled to service by the defendant companies.

It is also alleged that the canals are not kept in repair and cannot carry sufficient water for the use of the water users when plenty of water is obtainable. It is also stated that the price of water has been raised from $2.25 an inch to $2.55, an unnecessary and an unreasonable charge. All the essential allegations are denied by the defendants and it is particularly denied that the defendant companies were ever appropriators of water.
